EAGLE RADIO PRESS RELEASE

PRESS RELEASE: Eagle Radio gives away £1,000 to eight lucky listeners

Eagle Radio has given away a total of £8,000 to listeners across Surrey and Hampshire as part of its 'Grand Weekends' competition.

The competition aired every weekend throughout January and February, with the winner being announced on Monday morning as part of The Peter Gordon Breakfast Show.

The Guildford-based station received thousands of calls and online applications throughout the competition, with just over 8,000 listeners taking part over two months.

Eagle Radio's Programme Director Peter Gordon was thrilled with the outcome: "Grand Weekends' returned to Eagle Radio after a two-year break, and it seems just about everybody in Surrey and Hampshire has been talking about it. We know times are tough and we wanted to make a real difference for some of our listeners by giving them the chance to win a sizeable cash prize. It's been fabulous hearing listeners' reaction to winning over the past eight-weeks and exciting to hear how each winner has chosen to spend their £1,000."

The winners were based in various locations across Surrey and Hampshire, including: Bordon, Camberley, Chobham and Ash Vale.

Ends.
