PRESS RELEASE: THE GUILDFORD PLAN – WHERE ARE WE NOW?

EAGLE RADIO USES LOCAL POPULARITY TO HELP FURTHER COMMUNITY PROGRESS

After all the activity and opinions involving potential future developments in Guildford borough, a free public event is being held to offer residents and businesses the chance to ask any questions they have.

Independently hosted by Eagle Radio at the town's Yvonne Arnaud Theatre, the theme of the evening is 'The Guildford Plan – Where are we now?'

Plans for where we live, work and shop in the borough are proving contentious, with protestors marching on the council offices at Millmead some months back.

A recent consultation on the Local Plan Issues and Options document attracted more than 20,000 comments, making it the largest consultation in the borough's history.

Issues to be discussed include, but are not limited to, the number of homes needed in Guildford, whether or not we should develop on Greenbelt land and the redevelopment of Guildford town centre.

The 'Where are we now?' event is being held on May 6th and will offer anyone who uses the borough, even if they do not live there, the chance to put any questions they want to the council.

Eagle Programme Director Peter Gordon, who will host the exclusive event, said: "This sort of gathering is very different from a usual council meeting or pressure group huddle.

"It really is open for all who are interested in Guildford and its development – that includes residents, business people and those who just like to visit the borough!

"We're particularly looking forward to seeing people who don't usually take part in debates like these."

EAGLE RADIO PRESS RELEASE

Yvonne Arnaud Theatre Director, Jamie Barber, said: "It's terrific that Guildford's Yvonne Arnaud Theatre has been chosen to host this event and we look forward to welcoming representatives of Guildford Borough Council and members of the local community to what we hope will be a useful and constructive event."

The Guildford Borough Council panel will include Council Leader Stephen Mansbridge and Managing Director of the council Sue Sturgeon, amongst others.

The free event at the Yvonne Arnaud starts at 19:15 on Tuesday May 6th and no tickets are needed.
